

WERE AKHENATEN AND NEFERTITI ALIENS – STELLAR RACES – ANCIENT EGYPT

Conocimiento Pleyadiano

21 November, 2021

Video URL: https://youtu.be/ldtaVTo_4hw

In this video we share our research about the pharaoh Akhenaten and his wife Nefertiti, his reign and the Amarnian period in Egypt, complemented with the extraterrestrial information from Taygeta.

PRESENTATION

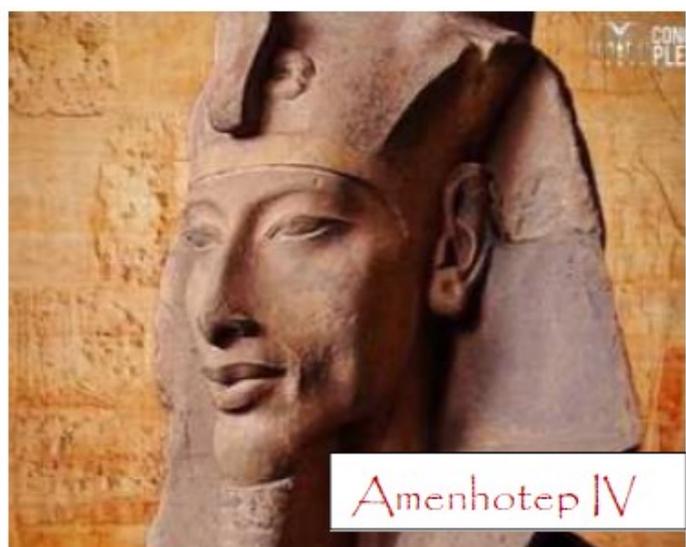

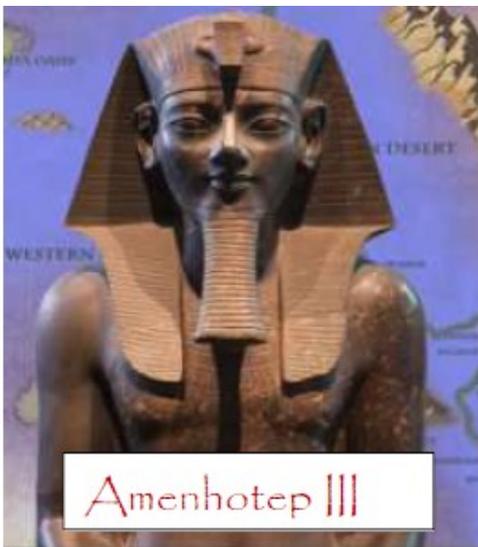

Hello everyone, welcome to Pleiadian Knowledge, I'm Estel'la. In this video we are going to first present our research on Pharaoh Akhenaten, and his wife Nefertiti, from ancient Egypt, with the data found here on Earth about them. To try to understand who these people were, what evidence they have left in our history about their origin and what impact they have caused to this day in our society. And then, at the end of the video, we will share the information pertaining to Anéeka of Temmer, of the Taygetean race in the Pleiades, about what the civilization of Egypt was like at that time, and who these two characters really were.

To begin with, situating ourselves a bit, the history of Egypt according to our official history begins around 5,300 BC in the predynastic period, in the Late Neolithic and corresponding to the Stone Age. Then ancient Pharaonic Egypt dates back to 3,015 BC, and developed for more than 3,500 years. And it is terminated in the year 31 BC, when the Roman Empire conquered and absorbed Ptolemaic Egypt.

Its social structure is described as pyramidal, with the pharaoh with absolute power, and descending towards the priests, scribes, soldiers, merchants, peasants and finally slaves. The Egyptians stood out for being polytheists, worshiping different gods and goddesses. Even so, in each region they had a main god who they worshiped and the others were worshiped secondarily.

AKHENATEN

Starting with Akhenaten, Amenhotep IV was the 18th pharaoh of the 18th dynasty of Egypt. His reign is dated around 1353-1336 BC. He is a character that stands out in history since he started the monotheism movement. His reign as Amenhotep IV lasted five years, during which time he followed the policies of his father Amenhotep III and the religious traditions of Egypt. However, in the fifth year (other experts say the ninth) he underwent a profound religious transformation, shifting his devotion from the cult of Amun to the cult of Aton, a god represented as a solar disk. And he also changed his name from Amenhotep IV to Akhenaten. And for the next 12 years he became famous as the "heretic king" who abolished the traditional religious rites of Egypt and instituted the world's first known monotheistic state religion.

His religious reforms in practice reduced the power of the priests of other gods very present at that time, such as Amun, and 2,000 other deities, and placed it in his hands. He also moved the Egyptian capital from the traditional enclave at Thebes to the city he founded, Akhetaton, later to be called Amarna, to further distance his rule from that of his predecessors.

This is known as the Amarnian period (1353-1336 BC). This period is the most controversial time in Egyptian history, and it has been studied, debated, and written about far more than any other. And it is that the polytheism of the ancient Egyptians promoted a vision of the world in which peace and balance were emphasized. Historian Barbara Watterson explains: "By the ninth year of his reign, Akhenaten had outlawed all the ancient gods of Egypt and ordered the closure of their temples; something very serious, since these institutions had an important role in the economic and social life of the country. Religious persecution was something new to the Egyptians, who had always worshiped many deities and were always ready to add even more to the pantheon. However, Atonism was a very exclusive religion, confined to the royal family, with the king as the only mediator between man and God. "

To understand what the prohibition of the other deities meant for the Egyptians, it must be remembered that for them, the gods were omnipresent beings in daily life in the country of the Nile: they were not only at the base of spirituality, but also permeated any element of practical existence, including medicine and science. So with this radical change, Akhenaten created not a few but many enemies among the people and some sectors of the Theban nobility and clergy. Akhenaten also highlighted being the first ruler to decree a statuary and a temple in honor of his wife, Nefertiti, instead of just himself, or the gods. But we will continue with Nefertiti later. It is said that in the seventeenth year of his reign, Akhenaten died at a likely age between 30 and 36, but the truth is that virtually nothing is known of Akhenaten's final years.

The investigations carried out by the British Egyptologist Nicholas Reeves, confirm that Akhenaten was almost certainly buried in the tomb that he had himself built in the Tell-al-Amarna necropolis. But his body, nonetheless, was never found. Reeves, like many other researchers, does not rule out that he was murdered.

Some historians estimate that the mummy in tomb KV55 belongs to Akhenaten, since it corresponds to a male of about 35 years; It is of the same blood group as Tutankhamun, supposed son of the pharaoh and has a skull proportionally larger than the body. But to this day, it still remains a mystery and there is no sufficiently conclusive data on the matter.

AKHENATEN AND MOSES

Due to the great changes that Akhenaten made trying to completely suppress the polytheism that ruled Egypt, and establishing a single God or religion as valid, there are several people who have related him to Moses, claiming that they were the same person. One of the first to approach that conclusion was Sigmund Freud, one of the greatest intellectual figures of the twentieth century, who due to the striking similarities between Akhenaten's religious vision and the teachings of Moses, in his latest book Moses and Monotheism, published in 1939, Freud argued that the biblical Moses was an official of Akhenaten's court and an adherent of the Aten religion. After Akhenaten's death, according to Freud's theory, Moses selected the Israelite tribe living east of the Nile Delta as his chosen people, brought them out of Egypt at the time of the Exodus, and passed on to them the principles of the religion of Akhenaten.

On the other hand, we have the Egyptian Ahmed Osman, born in Cairo in 1934 and author of several books, including Christianity: an ancient Egyptian religion and Moses and Akhenaten. Using recent archaeological discoveries and historical documents, Osman claims that Moses of the Bible is none other than King Akhenaten. And he explains to us that both the Hebrew Bible and the Koran mention that Moses was born in Egypt and was raised in the royal palace of Pharaoh, and then Osman details the events of the life of Moses / Akhenaten: how he was raised by Israelite relatives, ruled Egypt for seventeen years, enraged many of his subjects by replacing the traditional Egyptian pantheon with the worship of Aten, and was forced to abdicate the throne. Retreating into exile in Sinai with his Egyptian and Israelite supporters, he died out of sight of his followers, presumably at the hands of Seti I, son of Ramses I, after a failed attempt to regain his throne.

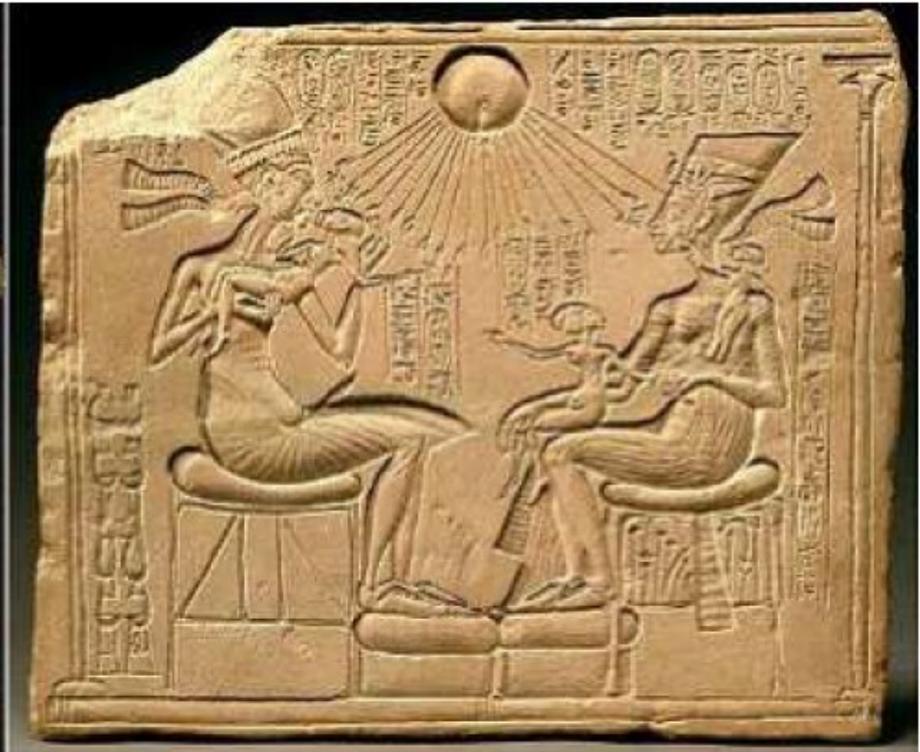

Osman reveals the Egyptian components in the monotheism preached by Moses, as well as his use of the expression of Egyptian religion and royalty. But also the Egyptologist Ramy Romany, says: "Many historians believe that Akhenaten moved the capital to Amarna to undermine the priests of Thebes. But others insist Akhenaten was forced into exile and fled north with the Egyptian army in pursuit. They believed this was a punishment for imposing monotheism," continues Ramy. "If this version is correct, it closely resembles the biblical account of Moses leading his people to the Exodus."

And analyzing the hieroglyphs in Akhenaten's tomb, he finds scenes of the pharaoh holding two tablets towards the sky, inscribed with a phrase: "the word of god." Description that is parallel to the story of Moses, who according to Judaism, himself received two stone tablets (inscribed by God) with the ten commandments.

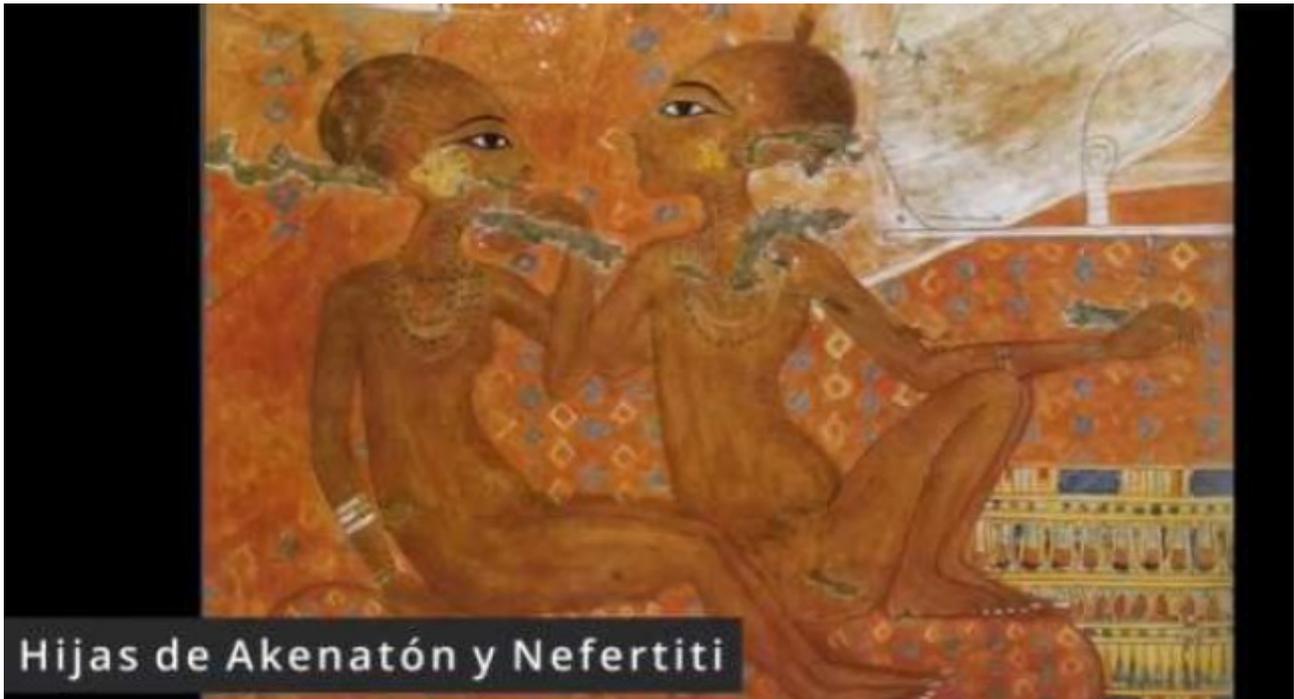

ALIEN APPEARANCE

Now, leaving aside all the political and religious revolution that Akhenaten caused, we are going to focus on other very curious facts about him, such as his strange appearance. And it is that Akhenaten looks different from all the pharaohs that have been detected so far. He had large, very elongated eyes, a bulging belly, deformed breasts (to the point of making historians doubt his sex), very long and thin arms, but most surprisingly, a suspiciously elongated skull.

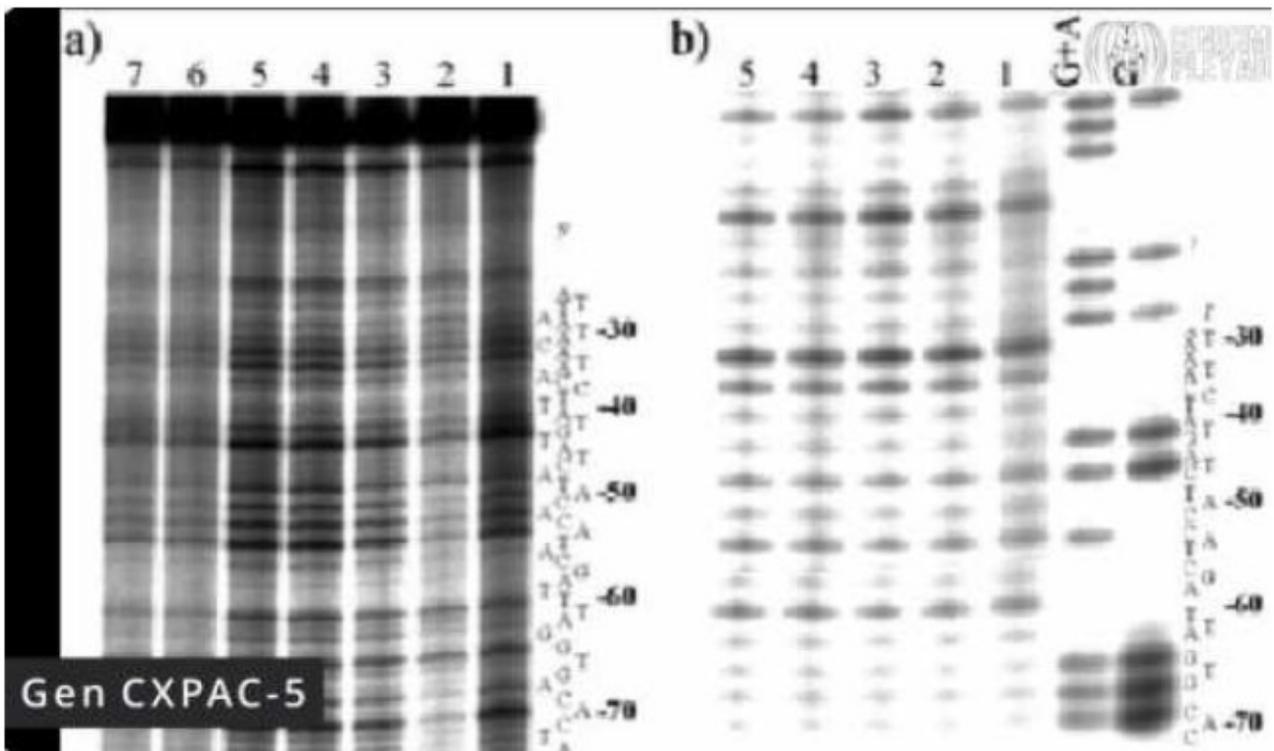

But not only he, but his entire royal family is portrayed in the same way, with elongated necks and arms and legs. Some researchers focused on different unique medical abnormalities to explain their appearances. Among these abnormalities are the rare Frohlich syndrome, Klinefelter syndrome, or Marfan syndrome. But the truth is that experts do not agree on which of these affected them, in addition to the fact that it would have to affect the entire royal family. From the other side, it has been wanted to reach the conclusion that it is most likely that the pharaoh's religious beliefs were the ones that influenced the art of the moment to portray them in that way. Therefore, his representations would be showing Akhenaten and Nefertiti as those who had been transformed into a divine existence through their devotion to Aten, to such an extent that their faith is seen even in their daughters.

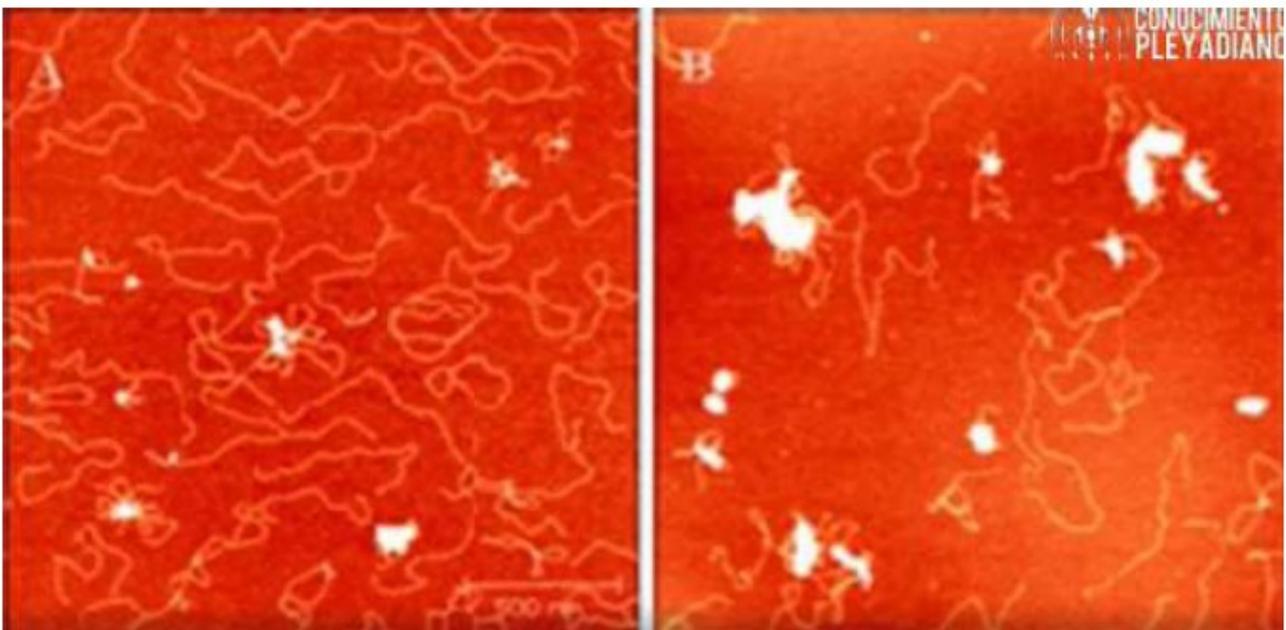

But there is also another possible answer to this, and it is that many people believe that Akhenaten was not human, but that he belonged to an extraterrestrial race, or a hybridization. And the study conducted by Stuart Fleischmann, assistant professor of comparative genomics at the University of Cairo, is very interesting. In 2015 he and his team published the result of a 7-year study, where they mapped the genomes of nine ancient Egyptian pharaohs. Eight samples were completely normal and the ninth that belonged to Akhenaten was quite unusual.

Fleischmann and his team put the ancient DNA samples through a process called polymerase chain reaction (PCR). In the field of molecular biology, this technique is often used to replicate and amplify a single copy of a DNA fragment, giving researchers a clear picture of a person's genetic fingerprint. In Akhenaten's case, a small piece of desiccated brain tissue had been the source of the DNA sample and the test was repeated using bone tissue, obtaining the same results.

They found a gene called CXPAC-5, responsible for the growth of the cortex. It seems that this increased activity in Akhenaten's genome would suggest that he had a greater cranial capacity due to the need to house a larger cortex. The section on the right shows the prevalence of the CXPAC5 gene in a normal human. On the left we have Akhenaten's DNA sample.

The image below shows two microscope photographs of bone tissue taken from Akhenaten's skull and that of a different mummy of the same age.

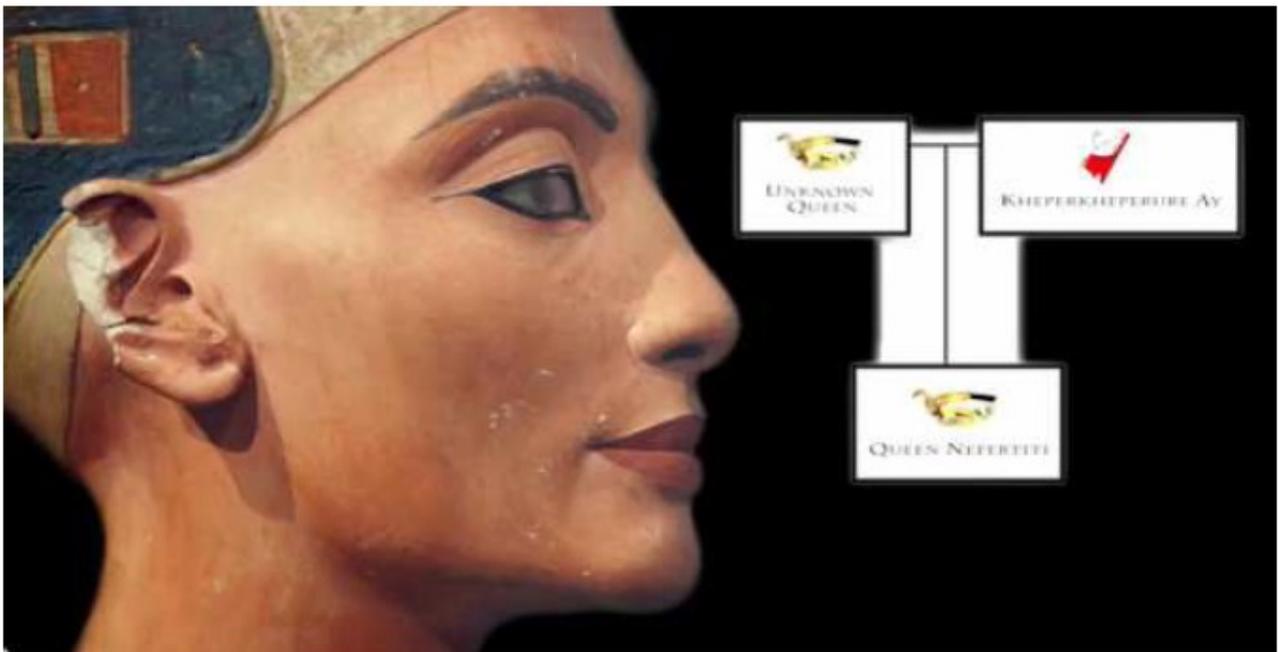

The bone tissue on the left is much denser and fundamentally different on a nanoscopic scale. Could this increased strength of the skull bones be an indicator of greater brain development? Results of analysis of bone tissue taken from Akhenaten's skull showed that his skull bones are much denser and fundamentally different from other mummies of the same age and period. Furthermore, Akhenaten's skull and skeleton are twice as dense and durable as those of modern humans.

This study, despite its potentially huge impact on the scientific community, never made it to the mainstream media. So far everything related to the pharaoh Akhenaten according to the different studies and terrestrial investigations, and now we are going to explain a little about Nefertiti, who is also surrounded by mysteries.

NEFERTITI

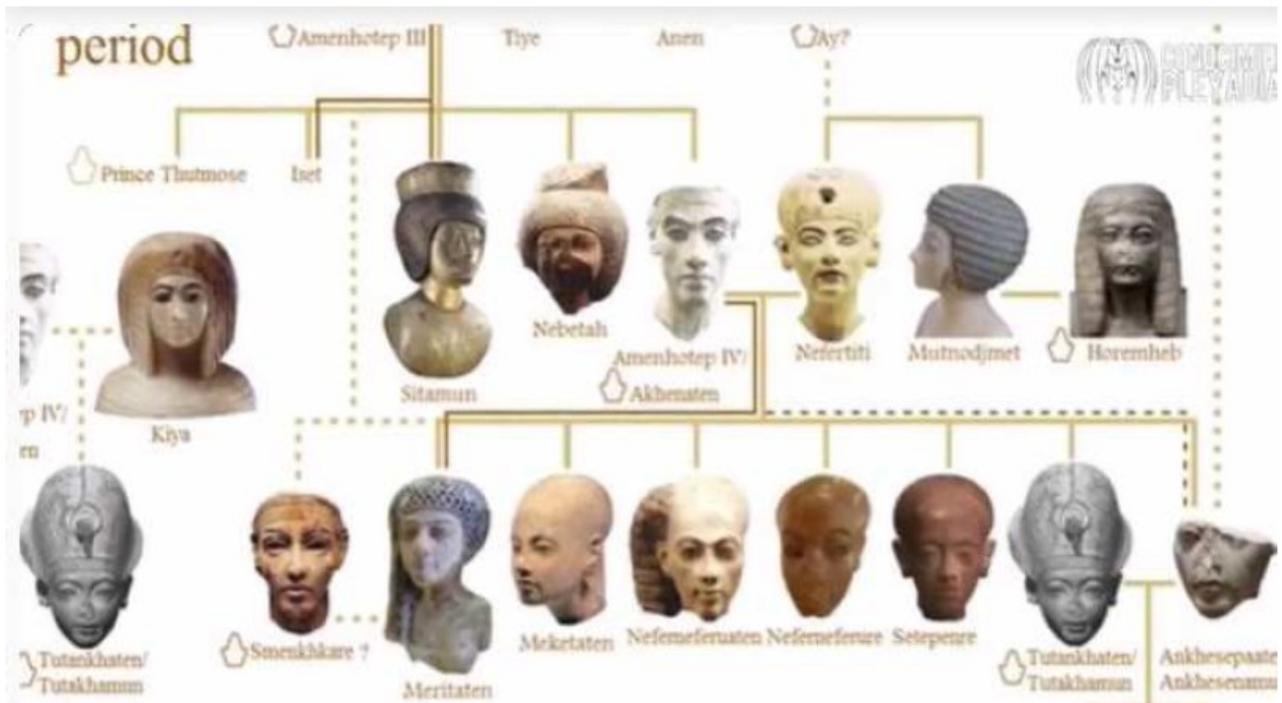

Nefertiti (c.1370 - c.1336 BC) was the wife of Pharaoh Akhenaten of the 18th dynasty of Egypt. Her name means "the beautiful one has come", and, thanks to the famous bust created by the sculptor Tutmose (discovered in 1912), she is the most easily recognizable queen of ancient Egypt. Her parents are unknown, since although it seems that Nefertiti was the daughter of Ay, this statement is far from being confirmed. The inscriptions refer to Ay's wife, Tiye (or Tey), as Nefertiti's nurse, not her mother, and in fact, we do not even know her nationality or true name, since Nefertiti's was acquired when she became Queen.

At fifteen she was already married to Amenhotep IV and, after the death of Amenhotep III, she became queen of Egypt. Some experts claim that it was at this stage that he exerted the greatest influence on Amenhotep IV (Akhenaten) to abandon the ancient religion of Egypt and initiate his religious reforms. Nefertiti ruled with Akhenaten until his death, after which he disappears from the historical record.

Historian Peter B. Heller notes: "The amazing thing about Nefertiti's life and work is that, despite the fact that her appearance (derived from the bust of Tutmose) is one of the best known and most reproduced in the world, and although she lived in a time when Egypt was the most cultured and powerful nation on Earth, surprisingly little is known about it."

Surviving images show her equal in size to Akhenaten, so Nefertiti must have had more power than any other woman in Egypt since the time of Hatshepsut (1479-1458 BC). Given the position of her image on her husband's sarcophagus, she came to be known as the incarnation of Isis and all her magical and sexual prowess. With this label came the belief that Nefertiti participated in the daily rebirth of the cosmos. There could not be a more dominant position in Egypt or on Earth. The couple had six daughters: Meritaton, Meketaton, Ankesenpaaton, Neferneferuaton-Tasherit and Setepenra, but no son.

HER DEMISE

Around the 14th year of the reign of Akhenaten and Nefertiti, their daughter Meketaton died giving birth at the age of 13. Soon after, Nefertiti disappears from the historical record. Many theories have been offered to explain this abrupt disappearance, and among them are the following:

1. She lost her husband's favor because she could not produce a male heir so she was replaced by Kiya.
2. He abandoned the religion of Aten and Akhenaten banished it.
3. He committed suicide due to the pain of the loss of his daughter.
4. He continued to rule under the name Smenkhkare until his stepson, Tutankhamun, was old enough to assume the throne.

Of all these theories, none has been corroborated except the fourth, and even that is uncertain according to many experts. So to this day his mummy has not been found, nor is it known what happened to Nefertiti. Erik Von Däniken, Swiss author of several books with claims about extraterrestrial influences on early human culture, says: "Nefertiti's parents are unknown. In representations, she is shown with one of these elongated heads. Now, we know the gods, the ancient Egyptian gods, they had longer heads than we do. And according to the pyramid texts, sometimes she and Akhenaten left Earth and then came back again. So maybe Nefertiti's parents were aliens."

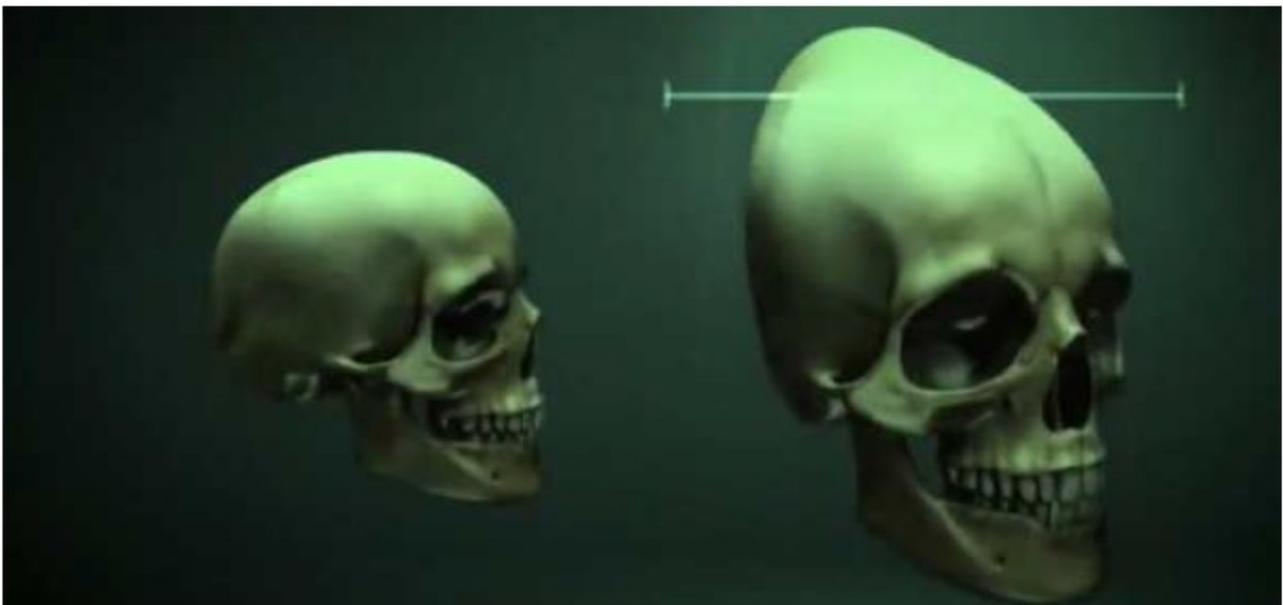

And the Egyptian hieroglyphs of that time illustrate that Nefertiti and Akhenaten had unique relationships with the solar disk that they proclaimed as the only God. According to a variety of these pyramid source texts, the royal couple appears to have left Earth for periods of time. There are similar texts that show his many returns to Earth.

Here we finish with our investigations on Akhenaten and Nefertiti, which, as you yourself may have seen, contain many curiosities and of course, many of their data have been hidden from the population. It should also be noted that according to our official history, after Akhenaten's death, the consequent pharaohs who ascended to the throne, not only returned Egypt to its polytheistic practices and philosophies of life, but also tried to destroy all documents related to Akhenaten, his reign and the changes he had made. In an attempt to erase it from history, from the records, as if it had never existed.

As you know, we work with the information provided by the Taygetean extraterrestrial race, and we try to complement it with these investigations in order to have more data available and a better understanding of the facts. Even taking into account that all the information that is available on Earth, that is to say, disinformation, to avoid the awakening of the population and the knowledge of the truth.

As for example Swaruú of Erra shared: "The case of the antiquities administrator of the Cairo museum," Hawas "(Zahi Hawass), is on the list of people to be arrested for crimes against humanity by the Federation. For not letting go and for controlling what is in Egypt. The official story is rubbish. "

Anéeka of Temmer explained to us in the conversation that we have shared in the video: "The creation of the cabal," which if you have not seen it yet, I recommend it to you to understand all this better, than the creation of the terrestrial cabal that oppresses us and controls today, originated in Egypt with the appearance of Akhenaten and Nefertiti, by imposing a totalitarian monotheism. And Aneeka said: "Akhenaten belonged to the extraterrestrial race Homo Capensis, originating from the star Asterope in the Pleiades, also known here on Earth as Elohi. This race are "distant relatives" of the Lyrians, they have a much larger skull than the human but not a greater brain density. They do have a unified brain, that is, a single mass, but a lot of corpus callosum and little density, so that the bone plates of the skull differ from the human one. They also contain more cranioencephalic fluid and brain support fibers, which are the structures that hold the brain in place, making it shock resistant, with a more protective version of the skull."

Estel·la: Regarding the Homo Capensis, Yázhí also explained to us that: Formerly on Earth there were two main populations of Homo Capensis, one concentrated in Peru and the other in Egypt, being the same species. Although they were also found elsewhere, such as in the Carpathian mountains. Regarding Nefertiti, we know that she was also an extraterrestrial but for now we do not have the data on what race she belonged to.

Anéeka explained to us about Egypt that: At that time, Egypt was a starport for the different races of the Federation of United Planets, so there was a wide variety of beliefs and tolerances that went against the monotheism they were trying to impose. Then a great revolt was created in Egypt that ended up expelling Nefertiti and Akhenaten, then creating the biblical story of the Exodus, and that is that Moses and Akhenaten were the same person. The name Akhenaten means Golden Eye, Solar Worship.

The Egyptian people were survivors of the Tiamat disaster and it was because of the arrival of the Federation races, and those of M45, Elohi, Engan, Solatians, Hideans and Taygeteans, that Pre-Dynastic Egypt arose. Where Egypt flourished fully and at a higher level than today's society. With Zero Point energy, Medical Pods, sound healing. There was peace and prosperity, no slaves. Egypt back then was the most advanced place or civilization on Earth. Based on the Federation under Giza since 12,500 BC.

The Egyptians as a people were used to living among what they knew as "Gods", and they did not allow themselves to be manipulated, that was the problem, the Egyptian people wanted to continue with their polytheistic religion and Nefertiti / Ahkenaten imposed a monotheistic worship on them, for that was expelled.

And it is that, at that time Egypt was not a religion in the modern sense, where it is something with strict rules. In itself, I use the term religion freely as a definition. Because their polytheistic gods were nothing more than a number of races of the Federation to whom they gave a Thanksgiving, for teaching them agriculture, Astronomy, Mathematics ...

It is taken the wrong way today because it was not "Cult", it was not Religion. But modern archeology only gives its interpretations where an Egyptian god was something non-existent, not a real person, as they really were.

It was from the arrival of Ahkenaten and Nefertiti that everything began to deteriorate. When they are expelled from Egypt, Nefertiti and Ahkenaten with their followers (12 tribes of Israel-Egypt), they go to various places in the world, including Ireland, Scotland and Wales, France, Catalonia, Galilee, Malta, Greece and Italy. In Italy it is where they mix with the Etruscans, who all descend to the creation or foundation of the Roman Empire ... which as we know is the Pope, the Vatican and the Cabal. In addition, Yázhí Swaruú explained to us that Egypt is much older than historians believe, older even than Sumeria and Babylon.

Estel-la.- And with this, we are going to end this video. We hope that it has helped you to better understand our past, our history, and above all, the origin of the oppressive government under which we find ourselves today. Thank you very much for being, seeing and listening and we will continue to see each other in the following videos.

* * *

Links:

ODYSEE: <https://odysee.com/@PleiadianKnowledge:9>

FACEBOOK: <https://www.facebook.com/Pleiadian-Knowledge-108034420679455>

TELEGRAM: <https://t.me/CONOCIMIENTOPLYADIANOTELEGRAM>

IN ENGLISH: <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCe4VqunF6sfWEtxnU8SS9Gg>

THE TRANSCRIPTS CAN BE FOUND AT: www.swaruu.org

Facebook: Pleiadian Knowledge PDF: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/2783294118568494>

Transcribed by Andrea Mdos of Sociedad Taygeta

Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/1212334248933444>

Website: <https://www.sociedadtaygeta.com/>

Telegram: t.me/SociedadTaygetaFondodocumental

English translation by SpaceMonkey of Taygetean Disclosure - English Transcripts

<https://www.facebook.com/groups/325586172179485>